Winter Weather Advisory Issued for Stoddard County from Noon to Midnight Today

The National Weather Service in Paducah, Kentucky has issued a Winter Weather Advisory for Stoddard County, Missouri.

Affected Area

Portions of southern Illinois, western Kentucky, and southeast Missouri

Description

...WINTER WEATHER ADVISORY IN EFFECT FROM NOON TODAY TO MIDNIGHT CST TONIGHT... WHAT...Wet snow expected. Total snow accumulations of up to one inch...but localized higher amounts are possible. WHERE...Portions of southern Illinois, western Kentucky, and southeast Missouri. WHEN...From noon Today to midnight CST Tonight. IMPACTS...A narrow band of heavy snow will be capable of causing highly variable slushy pavement accumulations. Locally 1 to 2 inch per hour snowfall rates are possible. The greatest totals are expected to occur on grassy and elevated surfaces. Slippery road conditions are also possible where heavier snow occurs. ADDITIONAL DETAILS...Confidence remains low in if and where the narrow bands of heavy snow will set up. A slight shift north or south will make a huge difference in seeing minor impacts or no impacts at all. PRECAUTIONARY/PREPAREDNESS ACTIONS... Slow down and use caution while traveling. The latest road conditions for the state you are calling from can be obtained by calling 5 1 1.
