Hux 'Reluctantly' Resigns From City Council

Dexter's aldermen said farewell to one of their own Monday evening, as an Alderman Dr. Rick Hux resigned from the board.

Ward II Alderman Hux formally presented his resignation to the board at Monday evening's meeting. The board reluctantly accepted Hux's resignation.

Hux's wife Annette has accepted a position at Arkansas State University as assistant department chair of professor of Education, Leadership, Curriculum, and Special Education at the Jonesboro university. The family is moving to Jonesboro this summer. However, Hux plans on continuing his position as the director of the Malden Campus of Southeast Missouri State University.

"I have thoroughly enjoyed serving for two full terms as an Alderman in Ward II and appreciate our community's faith and support," Hux wrote in his resignation letter.

"We certainly have appreciated the contributions," Mayor Joe Weber said. "We're going to miss your humor."

Others concurred with Weber's statements.

"I will tell you, it's been a privilege working with him," City Administrator Mark Stidham said. "He brought a lot to the table and we're going to miss him."

"We're going to miss the old codger," Alderman Terry Battles joked during Aldermanic Forum.

"I'm going to miss you guys. I enjoyed this quite a bit," Hux said during the meeting. "When I was first approached about running I had to think about it a bit. But I have enjoyed it. There's a little melancholy in leaving. I need to go and do these other things and support my wife in her new job. I have enjoyed serving and hope I've been a benefit to the city."

Hux completed two complete terms on the city board. He was reelected to a third term this spring. Hux explained that his wife's position at ASU was not posted until after the municipal election.

Fathers Day: Let's Honor Dad

JUNE 19TH 2011 BY NEWS

Fathers Day: Let's Honor Dad

By Annabeth Miiler, ShowMe Times Editor

Everyone has a father, but few of us ever show Dad all of the appreciation he truly deserves. So, what do we really think makes our Dad special?

Tyler Stevenson just completed a special week with his dad. Talk about father-son bonding. These two had that opportunity at Boy Scout camp near St. Joseph.

Keith Stevenson grew up attending Camp Geiger in the Pony Express Council of Boy Scouts of America. And at Camp Geiger as a young man, he became a member of Mic-O-Say, the honor camping society of the Pony Express Council. Mic-O-Say's ceremonies, customs and traditions are loosely based on the folklore of the American Indian.

By blending the spirit and pride of the American Indian with the ideals and objectives of the Boy Scouts of America, the Tribe of Mic-O-Say endeavors to prolong the Scouting adventure with an historical theme that has held the attention and captured the imagination of boys and men alike for many generations. Its purpose is to reinforce the principles of the Scout Oath and Law, and to foster continued participation in Scouting.

When Tyler was a young Cub Scout and then Boy Scout, the family lived in St. Joseph, and Camp Geiger is where he first attended camp. This last week, father and son returned to camp, where a second generation in the family was chosen to join Mic-O-Say.

"My dad means more than almost anything in life. He has always helped me when I needed it, and has always tried to do things that would later help me in life," Tyler said. Tyler will be an eighth grade student at T.S. Hill Middle School this fall. Keith teaches advanced science (physics, advanced biology and zoology) at Poplar Bluff High School.

In a neat tradition with the Mic-O-Say, Tyler was "tapped out" this week, becoming a member of the tribe. And Dad Keith became an Honorary Warrior; the two now share a bond not only with the tribe, but also in their tribal names.

Keith is known as "Ghost Dancer". Tyler as a new brave is known as "Little Ghost Dancer."

A father-son bond.

"In Boy Scouts, he has led me and showed me how to become a better man and a better Scout. Even though at points he may be strange, he is still my father and I wouldn't trade him for anything."

Lauren Powers shares a powerful bond with her father, too. A bond of music and faith.

This spring father and daughter performed a special duet during the DHS Choirs Pop Concert. “Butterfly Kisses” is a special song between them – and they have sung it at the 8th grade Talent Show when Lauren left middle school, and now again as she prepared to graduate from high school. It was a touching moment for father and daughter, and for the audience at Pop Concert.

When Lauren thought of words to describe her dad, she had a list with eight words: strong, kind, hardworking, loving, passionate, comforter, giving and a true Godly man.

She said when she was a young girl and needed a problem solved or question answered, the first one she would run to would be her father. Lauren just graduated from Dexter High School where her dad Chuck is assistant principal.

“Even if he was busy, like trying to fix something broken or getting basketball plays together or lesson plans ready for the next day, he always had enough time to spare, just to listen. With this I always knew he was there for me,” Lauren said. And Lauren said her dad is her teacher, preacher and storyteller.

“He always knew the perfect words or story to help me push through my struggle with a strong heart. Each story told, came from his heart, which led me to know that he had experienced it before. But I noticed every time recurring in his stories was God, and how he helped him through his struggles more than anyone else, she said. “Seeing God through him made me want to experience and have God help me also. With knowing all that he had said to me, I re-gave my life to God and began a new journey this past year. Since this, my eyes have been more open to things and I have been able to break down thick and tall walls that have been inside me for years. I feel so lucky to say that God has blessed me with a wonderful mentor in my life, and that I also get to call this man, my father.”

Lauren says she feels lucky that God has blessed her with her father – her mentor.

“I have come to conclusion, in knowing what two words that describes my father just right. I am very proud to say ‘Charles Edward Powers, you are my Heroic Angel. I love you so much’,” she said.

Now, Ethan Kincy doesn't have as many life experiences as Lauren or Tyler – he's going into the fifth grade this fall. But his faith in and love for his father are just as rock solid this Father's Day.

Ethan says his dad is pretty special.

“He’s taught me a lot of things, and without him I couldn’t have done it,” he said. “He’s taught me how to hunt and to fish.”

Ethan says his dad Darren is a pretty good guy and they have a good time together. He and dad like to go deer hunting in the fall.

“We like to fish, hunt and be outside and watch baseball,” Ethan said. He and his dad especially like to watch Cardinal baseball.

While dad is busy with work with the Missouri Department of Transportation, he said he feels like he’s a lucky kid.

“My dad takes me to church, and that’s important,” Ethan said. “He takes me on trips a lot – like to Florida and Branson. My Dad’s a really good baseball player.”

Darren is coach on Ethan’s summer league team, and Ethan says his father is taking the time this summer to help him improve his baseball skills. It's obvious that Ethan respects his dad's skills with the sport.

Ethan says he’s a lucky kid because he has a special dad. And maybe this Father's Day he and his dad will go fishing, or go to the fort Ethan’s made in the woods by their house, or just watch a Cardinal ball game.

So, for kids like Tyler, Lauren and Ethan, today is Father's Day - a time to say thanks to their dads for all that they do and all that they are. And to maybe take stock in all that dads do from day-to-day.

A driving force behind the establishment of Father’s Day was Sonora Smart Dodd, born in Creston, Washington. She was inspired by Anna Jarvis’ efforts to establish Mother’s Day. Although she initially suggested June 5, the anniversary of her father’s death, the celebration was deferred to the third Sunday of June.

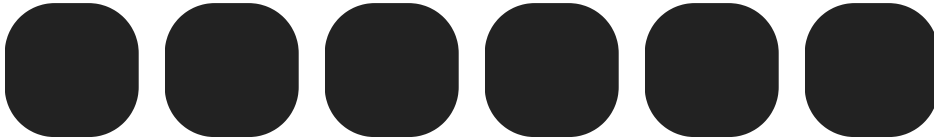

The first Father’s Day was celebrated on June 19, 1910, in Spokane, USA. In 1966, President Lyndon Johnson made Father’s Day a holiday to be celebrated on the third Sunday of June. The holiday was not officially recognized until 1972 during Richard Nixon’s presidency.
