Holiday Blood Drive Today In Dexter

DECEMBER 12TH 2011 BY UNKNOWN

Holiday Blood Drive Today In Dexter

Think outside the box this holiday season. The perfect gift is at your nearest American Red Cross blood drive or blood donation center. And, unlike the latest fashion trend, video game or golf club, it costs nothing but an hour of your time. When you donate blood, you give the perfect gift - another hug, another laugh, another smile, another chance - to someone in need of blood.

A blood drive will be held today, Monday, Dec. 12, from 3 until 7 p.m at the First United Methodist Church in Dexter. The church is located at 501 South Walnut Street, and the blood drive will be held in Wesley Hall on the church campus.

“It’s the season of giving and there’s one gift that won’t cost you a penny, but means the world to a patient in need,” said Scott Caswell, CEO of the Red Cross Missouri-Illinois Blood Services Region. “By donating blood, you can give someone an opportunity to spend another holiday with their loved ones.”

It only takes about an hour to donate blood, and in that hour, you can unwrap a lifetime of memories for hospital patients in your community and across the country. The need for blood is constant and doesn’t pause for the holidays. By taking time to donate this winter, you can help the Red Cross ensure a stable blood supply for all patients who need blood products.

All blood types are needed to help maintain a sufficient blood supply, especially type O negative. Type O negative blood, the universal blood type, is always in high demand because it can be transfused to patients with any blood type, especially in emergency situations.

Chamber Gathers For Last 2011 Meeting

By Annabeth Miller, SMT Editor

A record crowd attended Thursday's Dexter Chamber of Commerce Full Membership meeting and learned of some of the accomplishments during the last year.

Chamber President Ed Gargas presided at the final meeting of the year, with 90 chamber members participating. The meeting had the largest turnout ever for a December meeting.

He noted that in the last year the chamber has hosted more than 20 Ribbon Cutting Celebrations, had 31 new members and 11 new businesses in the Dexter community.

One of those new chamber members, Gargas noted, was the new Three Rivers Center in Dexter which opened for its first semester in January. College officials anticipate an enrollment for the spring semester of more than 250 in the new center and 400 students for the fall 2012 semester.

“In a year to grow for 400 students and that’s just tremendous,” Gargas said. He noted that many of those students will be coming to Dexter for classes. “While they are here between classes hopefully they are stopping by your restaurant, your gift shop, your gas station and investing some of their dollars into our great community.”

New directors joining the board of directors on Jan. 1 will be Erin Brown, Bobby Greer and Jackie McQuin. They will be replacing retiring members Gargas, Scott Chesser and Kevin Bishop.

The Leadership Dexter 2012 class was announced at the Full Membership meeting. Leadership Dexter is a leader development program sponsored by the Chamber for emerging leaders in the community. Dexter's Vaughn To Speak At Southeast

By Annabeth Miller, SMT Editor

CAPE GIRARDEAU - One of Dexter's most honored native sons will deliver the December commencement address at Southeast Missouri State University.

Lt. Gen. Clyde Vaughn, retired director of the Army National Guard of the United States and a 1968 graduate of Southeast Missouri State University, will deliver the commencement address.

Commencement is scheduled for 2 p.m. Dec. 17 in the Show Me Center in Cape Girardeau during which 656 students--543 undergraduates and 113 graduate students -- will receive degrees.

Vaughn was raised in Dexter, graduated from Dexter High School and attended Southeast Missouri State where he graduated in 1968. He taught and coached at Dexter High School after graduating from SEMO.

Vaughn was commissioned through the Missouri National Guard Officer Candidate School program in 1974 and served in a wide variety of command and staff positions as a traditional Guardsman and on active duty. He also served extensively in Central and South America on several deployed task forces.

Vaughn retired as the director of the Army National Guard in July 2009 after nearly 40 years of service to the Guard and the U.S. Army. As director of the Army National Guard -- a force of over 350,000 Soldiers in the 54 states, territories, and the District of Columbia -- Vaughn guided the formulation, development and implementation of all programs and policies affecting the Army Guard. He built an innovative and highly successful recruiting program; undertook the changes necessary to raise Army National Guard combat readiness levels to all time highs; enabled the Army National Guard to meet all wartime and deployment requirements, deploying more than 300,000 soldiers; guided the deployment of Army National Guard soldiers to hurricanes Katrina and Rita and the Southwest Border; and developed several innovative programs such as the Afghanistan Agriculture Development Teams.

Among the unique approaches to the challenge of recruiting 70,000 new soldiers a year were establishing a National Guard High School Academy in Indiana, and a GED institution in Arkansas. These schools were for nationwide, high potential, high school dropouts who desired to join the Army National Guard and serve their country.

His general officer assignments were as deputy director of operations, Readiness, and mobilization and deputy director of military support under the G3 of the U.S. Army, deputy director of the Army National Guard, assistant to the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff for National Guard Matters, and director of the Army National Guard from June 2005 to July 2009.

Vaughn has received the Army Distinguished Service Medal with Oak Leaf Cluster, the Defense Superior Service Medal, and the Legion of Merit with four Bronze Oak Leaf Clusters. In 2006, he was honored with the Alumni Merit Award by Southeast Missouri State University. In 2010 he was awarded the McLain Medal by the Association of the U.S. Army, which is awarded to one Army National Guard Soldier each year.

He holds a Bachelor of Science in Education from Southeast Missouri State University and a Master of Public Administration from Shippensburg (Pa.) University. His professional military education includes the United States Army Command and General Staff College in Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and the U.S. Army War College in Carlisle, Pa.

Vaughn and his wife Carol Westrich of Cape Girardeau met while attending Southeast. They have two children, Kristi and Chad, and four grandchildren. Vaughn and Carol, his wife of 44 years, currently reside in Winchester, Va

For families unable to attend or for those who wish to preserve the moment, a DVD copy of either the Honors Convocation or commencement ceremony may be ordered by contacting Dr. Jim Dufek at (573) 651-2484.

The DVD copies include “senior shoutouts” which are brief prerecorded messages from various graduates to friends and family. “Senior shoutouts” also are aired on monitors on the Show Me Center concourses prior to commencement.

Two Girls Teach How To 'Help The World'

Two Girls Teach How To 'Help The World'

By Annabeth Miller, SMT Editor

At first glance it appeared to be like any other little girls' seventh birthday party. Children were running and playing with hula-hoops and having a wondrous time. There were bouncing balls and balloons, peppy music and a pretty pair of cakes, and laughs and giggles.

But wait! Where are the presents, the discarded wrapping paper, the bows torn off packages in excitement, the new toys and games and dolls and all "the stuff?"

Ellie Dowdy and Maddie Glaus "almost share" birthdays – they were born one day apart. So, at their birthday party recently, they had all the fun, friends and frenzy. But these two young ladies wanted to do something different -something for other kids. So the invitations went out to friends asking them to a party, but asking for friends not to bring presents to the birthday celebrants.

These two 7-year old girls instead asked their friends to bring a toy for other kids – kids who might not have a toy, game, or Barbie under the Christmas tree. They asked their friends to bring a new, unwrapped present for other children.

"We just wanted to help other kids," Ellie said. The two girls took a short break from the birthday party action.

"We just wanted to help the world and help other kids," Maddie.

Some friends, Ellie explained, also brought cards for the two birthday girls.

"Cards are alright but we want presents for other kids," she said. Maddie agreed with her buddy.

“Some kids might not have any presents. So we want to be sure they got a present,” Maddie said.

There’s too much excitement to talk long. There are friends inside, and music and fun and games and hula-hoops ready for action. And a cart of unopened presents – all ready to brighten the holidays for other young children.

Already, at age seven, these two young ladies have taught grownups lessons about giving thanks, giving to others, and how it is often the little things that can make the biggest change in the world.
