Youth Group Picks, Sells Fresh Corn

They're a 'corny' group!

The young women and men of the Christian Youth Fellowship from Dexter's First Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) are all about corn today. Fresh, hand-picked Stoddard County corn.

The young folks picked corn Sunday evening. They youth are now selling the corner at the corner of Mulberry and Stoddard streets on the Cleo's Sinclair station lot. Sweet corn is $4 a dozen while it lasts.

The youth will use the proceeds of their sweet corn stand for on-going youth activities at the church and for sponsorship of a child in India through the denomination's mission outreach.

Bethel Youth Group Gives Back On Trip

JUNE 26TH 2012 BY STAFF WRITER

Bethel Youth Group Gives Back On Trip

*By Taylor Eggimann,
ShowMe Times Staff Writer*

ADVANCE - The Bethel General Baptist Church Youth Group decided this year instead of going to National Youth Conference somewhere that they wanted to give back; and they did just that.

The group wanted to help the people of Joplin, who are still suffering from the tornado a year ago. They had a yard sale during the 100 Mile Yard Sale and raised money to donate to Mission Joplin which is a church organization providing for the physical needs of the community members.

Then the first week of June the group of twenty-three headed west. While out there they painted, cleaned up debris, stocked shelves, delivered furniture, listened to some pretty amazing stories people had to share, and prayed.

“It really was a great experience for all of us on the trip. It opened my eyes and I know some others with us too. And it really shows the people of Joplin that people STILL care.” said Wesley Garner, youth group member.

Trinity/FCC Youth Groups Enjoy Slip-N-Slide

On Sunday (June 24) afternoon, Trinity FCC Youth group decided to beat the heat with some wet and muddy fun at the home of Tim and Kay Holder. The Holders, along with Alan and Tracy Hedrick, planned an awesome youth event for all ages! Over 90 people joined in the fun, including a slip-n-slide, silly string fights, and barbecue sandwiches and nachos thanks to Darrell Hicks and Hicks Smoked Meats. Some of the adults couldn't resist the slip-n-slide and had to join in on the fun! A big thank you to all who helped and came out for a fun filled day.

Woman, 106, Attends Church Conference

MAY 02ND 2012 BY UNKNOWN

Woman, 106, Attends Church Conference

*By Susan Passi-Klaus,
United Methodist Communications
Special to the ShowMe Times*

Editor's Note: This report is from the United Methodist General Conference currently meeting in Tampa, Fla. The General Conference is the denomination's top legislative body for all matters affecting the United Methodist connection. More than 1,000 United Methodist from across the country and world are participating.

TAMPA, Fla. - She loves her United Methodist Church. And her United Methodist Church loves her. There was no doubt of that when 106-year-old Louise Short was introduced and greeted by a standing ovation at the morning plenary May 1.

Some might assume Short, widow of Bishop Roy Short, was applauded because of the number of digits in her age and that certainly may have been part of the reason. However, what really garnered admiration was the announcement that the centenarian has attended every General Conference since 1939.

"I just can't understand all the attention given me," Short said. "I don't know what I've ever done to deserve anything. Methodist people are just wonderful people."

"I love The United Methodist Church because of their deep interest in people having an abundant life through Christ and because of the peace and comfort they offer others who face hard times."

Bombarded with requests for photographs and interviews, Short expressed concern that she would miss the “action” on the plenary floor.

“If I don’t watch it, I’ll just get in there in time for the benediction!”

Battling a bad case of shingles that she admitted was sapping her strength, Short said her interest in church business is still strong. She keeps a close watch on United Methodist issues and is aware that change is definitely in the air at General Conference 2012.

“As we do our legal work,” she said, “we should also remember to help our spiritual life.”

Why keep coming back?

“My husband was very active and very productive in his ideas in the conduct of The United Methodist Church,” she explained. “It overflowed into me. Of course, my main interest is to tell the citizens of the world to follow Jesus Christ.

Short, who lives at a retirement home in Hermitage, Tenn., is the oldest of eight brothers and sisters. Five are still living, including a 100-year-old brother. Both her parents lived beyond their 100th birthdays.

“In our family, we don’t believe in dying,” she laughed. “It’s been marvelous for me to live this long.”

Nevertheless, as she continues to lose generations of friends and loved ones, she said it gets harder to say goodbye. Her recent turn of health has left her weakened, and she isn’t the spry young thing she was at her 105th birthday party.

“But I’m not afraid of dying,” Short said. “He, who has kept me all this time will keep me the rest of the time. I’m blessed.”
