American Wasteland Entertainment, LLC. is a production company focusing on online entertainment, film, and corporate commercial/infomercial production that is owned and operated by Jason Brasier and Brittney Greer. Jason is a graduate of Willow Springs, Missouri, and Brittney is a 2004 graduate from Dexter High School.

Brasier and Greer met while both being enrolled in screenwriting classes at Missouri State University in Springfield, Missouri.

Brasier comments on the creation of American Wasteland Entertainment, “I had wanted to start my own production company since I was in high school. I knew I wanted to do it, but couldn’t do it alone.” It was after much discussion that Brasier’s wife suggested him asking Greer to get involved with him on this idea. “It made absolute sense.”

Greer jumped on board with this idea with no hesitation. Brasier and Greer had already done a few small projects together through their classes, so the talented minds of the two were easily meshed together. “I’m happy she agreed to come along for the ride,” Brasier said.

When asked why most everything with American Wasteland Entertainment starts online, Brasier answers, “Things are just going in that direction with entertainment and everything in general. I noticed this back in 2004.”

The goal of American Wasteland Entertainment is to become a micro studio. In other words, they write, produce, direct, edit, and or distribute their own content/productions and make a living doing what they both love.

“We know it’s not going to happen over night and will take time just as anything in the entertainment business does, but we’re more than willing to do the extra leg work to make it happen,” Brasier notes on getting started with the business.

Some of the side projects for clients that have been accomplished by the company include: online promos, infomercials, commercials, how to, or corporate videos.

Two of the biggest projects under the production of American Wasteland right now are: Drifter: Broken Road and Stage Fright.

Drifter:Broken Road is written and directed by Jason Brasier and is a series of episodes than can be viewed at: www.drifterseries.com. You can also follow Drifter: Broken Road’s twitter feed by following “@DrifterSeries”

Stage Fright is written by Brittney Greer and Jason Brasier (also directed by Brasier) and is a series of episodes that can be viewed as well by visiting: www.AmericanWastelandEnt.com/StageFright

Both Brasier and Greer would appreciate it if you would take a few seconds to “like” their Facebook page. Just search for American Wasteland Entertainment and hit the like button!

By watching their series, hitting the like button, and even just a few words of encouragement, you are encouraging these two small town Missourians to continue chasing their dreams!
