Jefferson City, Missouri - The budget has been truly agreed and finally passed: the largest in the state's history of 26.4 billion.

We believe we helped make a difference in many departments across the state, especially Education. The House resumed moving forward on bills with great interest.

The Agriculture omnibus bill was passed by the House and Senate. The parts of the bill receiving the most attention were covering a program to assist the daily operation in remaining prominent in Missouri agriculture.

Our dairy farmers have been leaving the industry because of low pricing they received for their milk and the high cost of feed brought about by drought conditions where our herds are located. With the loss of our dairy farmers the state of Missouri is now having to import 60% of our milk to meet the need.

The other topic that brought the most interest pertained to captive cervids (white tail deer). These animals were classified as livestock and placed under the boundaries of the the Department of Agriculture. Meetings held with both the Department of Conservation and the Department of Agriculture developed in the new Administration Assignment. Here in the last hours of session, as I write this Capitol Report, we are still working with the Senate through conference committees dealing with issues of importance.

Heading the list would be the school transfer bill pertaining to the unaccredited school districts in St. Louis and Kansas City. A tremendous amount of time and input from not only the committees, but other members of the chambers, as well as interest groups associated with education have been working tirelessly on this issue to help ensure these children have the opportunity at a quality education and move forward with their lives.

As another session draws to a close, I want to personally thank you for allowing me the opportunity to serve you. We, Shana (the Jr. Representative for District 150) and myself have learned much more about this great state. We have established relationships with state leaders and department heads, and have worked through many constituent issues. Having school groups and folks from home at the Capitol is always a bonus. Our beliefs and positions for District 150 have not and will not be compromised. It truly is an honor and one I will continue to do the best of my ability to serve.

Treating Behavioral Health Like Physical Health

Treating Behavioral Health Like Physical Health

Jefferson City, Missouri - As families in Missouri and nationwide mark National Mental Health Awareness Month in May, approximately one in four adults suffers from a diagnosable mental illness nationwide, according to the National Institutes of Health (NIH). Unfortunately, many don't receive the care they need.

We were reminded of this important challenge last month during the devastating events at Fort Hood, Texas. As Commanding General Mark Milley noted in the aftermath of this tragedy, the suspect reportedly sought help for mental illness, and he had a medical history indicating an “unstable psychiatric or psychological condition” that investigators believe to be a “fundamental underlying factor” in this catastrophe. Army Secretary John McHugh also told Congress the suspect was undergoing treatment for depression, anxiety, and sleep disturbances.

There's no doubt that our military bases on American soil should be the safest place possible for our servicemen and women and for their loved ones. Fort Hood was a terrible loss for all Americans, especially for those who are willing to serve and for their families. In the weeks following, I visited General Leonard Wood Army Hospital (GLWACH) to learn more about the military's mental health services, and I continue to talk to military leaders in Missouri and in Washington as part of my role on the Senate's defense authorizing and appropriations committees. My goal is to work with our nation's military leaders to guarantee our servicemen and women, veterans, and military families have access to quality behavioral health treatment – before a mental health crisis takes a terrible turn for the worst.

As part of those efforts, I recently introduced the bipartisan “Caring For America's Heroes Act” to bring treatment for mental illness in-line with the way physical illnesses are treated for military retirees and their families under TRICARE. I also joined my colleague Senator Debbie Stabenow (Mich.) to successfully pass a version of the “Excellence in Mental Health Act” last month to help address the nation's fragmented mental health system. This provision establishes two-year pilot programs in eight states to expand access to community mental health services. The original legislation garnered broad support, with 25 Senators co-sponsoring and endorsements from more than 50 mental health, veteran, and law enforcement groups.

Mental illness is just that: an illness. As we recognize National Mental Health Awareness Month, I hope my colleagues will join me in working to improve our nation's policies. We must start treating behavioral health like physical health if we're going to expand access and reduce the stigma surrounding mental illness.

Nixon Releases Statement - Former Gov. Teasdale Passes

Missouri - Governor Jay Nixon today released the following statement upon the death of former Missouri Gov. Joseph P. Teasdale. The Governor also has ordered flags at all Missouri state facilities to be flown at half-staff until the date of interment for Gov. Teasdale.

Earlier this evening we received the sad news about the passing of a dedicated public servant, former Governor Joseph P. Teasdale. Gov. Teasdale was a good man whose life was guided by a deep and abiding faith and a commitment to public service.

By the time he was elected as Governor in 1976 at the age of 40, Gov. Teasdale already had a record of accomplishment. As an Assistant U.S. Attorney in Kansas City, he headed up the organized crime section; then at the age of 30, he became the youngest prosecuting attorney in the history of Jackson County.

The hallmark of his 1976 campaign was his walking across the state to personally visit with Missourians, and the pages of Missouri’s political history were made richer with the image of “Walkin’ Joe.”

During his tenure as Governor, Gov. Teasdale was especially known for his actions in support of Missouri seniors. He created the Division of Aging, he pushed for passage of the Nursing Home Reform Act, and he supported removal of the state sales tax on prescription drugs.

Georganne and I are keeping the Teasdale family in our thoughts and prayers.

Veterans of Operation Iraqi/Enduring Freedom Day

Veterans of Operation Iraqi/Enduring Freedom Day

Missouri - Gov. Jay Nixon encouraged Missourians to observe Veterans of Operation Iraqi/Enduring Freedom Day on March 26 in honor of the nation's military veterans who served in the conflicts in Iraq and Afghanistan. In 2012, the Governor signed into law a bill designating March 26 as the date in Missouri to give special honor and recognition to those veterans who have served in Operation Iraqi Freedom, Operation Enduring Freedom and Operation Desert Storm.

“In every town across Missouri, you’ll find veterans who served during one of these conflicts in the Middle East,” Gov. Nixon said. “You’ll also find thousands of Missouri families who still have a loved one in uniform in Afghanistan or another country where our military serves. We have a responsibility to honor and respect their sacrifice, and I encourage Missourians to join me in thanking these veterans and their families for what they have done for our country and our state.”

As a member of the Council of Governors, Gov. Nixon has traveled twice to Iraq and three times to Kuwait and Afghanistan since 2009 (most recently in December 2012) to meet with U.S. military and civilian leaders in those countries and to visit with Missourians serving in the Missouri National Guard or the regular armed forces.

In January 2010, Gov. Nixon also launched the Show-Me Heroes initiative, which works with Missouri employers to give first consideration to military veterans when job openings occur. In the past four years, more than 3,500 Missouri employers have taken the Show-Me Heroes pledge, and more than 6,300 veterans have been hired by those businesses since those employers joined the program.

Affordable Access to Oral Chemotherapy Bill Signed

Affordable Access to Oral Chemotherapy Bill Signed

Dee Loflin, SMT Manager/Editor*

Missouri - Gov. Jay Nixon joined cancer patients, survivors and health care providers at Siteman Cancer Center in St. Louis to sign Senate Bill 668, which will increase the affordability and accessibility of oral chemotherapy medications.

“No Missourian battling cancer should have to break the bank in order to get the medicine they need,” Gov. Nixon said. “Passed with overwhelming bipartisan support, Senate Bill 668 will make sure insurance companies provide affordable coverage for these lifesaving medications, regardless of how a patient chooses to take them. I appreciate the hard work by members of the General Assembly, including Representative Solon, Senator Silvey and others, to get this bill to my desk and bring more affordable cancer treatment options to Missourians.”

Oral anticancer medications provide patients with a simpler, more convenient and less invasive alternative to chemotherapy delivered intravenously because these pills can be taken at home, often with fewer side effects. Currently, most insurance companies cover these drugs as part of a prescription drug benefit, rather than a medical benefit. As a result, cancer patients taking oral chemotherapy pills have faced significantly higher out-of-pocket costs than those who take their drugs intravenously.

Senate Bill 668 addresses this disparity by preventing insurance companies from treating out-of-pocket costs for chemotherapy pills differently than intravenous drugs. Health insurance companies can comply with the law by limiting the out-of-pocket costs they charge for anticancer medications taken orally to $75 for a thirty-day supply.

“With more and more oral chemotherapy pills coming on the market, this legislation was needed to ensure insurance companies cover these medications in an equitable way,” said Sen. Ryan Silvey (R-Kansas City). “Senate Bill 668 will bring Missouri in line with the majority of other states that have taken this common sense step to make sure Missourians with insurance have access to the cancer treatment option that’s best for them.”

“This legislation is about putting decisions about cancer care in the hands of doctors and patients, rather than insurance companies,” said Rep. Sheila Solon (R-Blue Springs). “Missourians struggling with cancer deserve the best, most effective treatment for their disease. I have been proud to work with my fellow legislators to get this common sense legislation passed, and I appreciate the Governor for signing it today.”

The bill, which is estimated to impact 1.6 million insured Missourians, received strong support from organizations including the American Cancer Society, the Leukemia & Lymphoma Society, and the Missouri Association of Osteopathic Physicians.

“As The Leukemia & Lymphoma Society and our partners in the community invest in research for cures, we want to ensure access to the best cancer treatments for every Missourian,” said Debbie Kersting, Executive Director of the Leukemia & Lymphoma Society – Gateway Chapter. “We applaud Governor Nixon and members of the General Assembly for their strong support of this bill, which will put affordable, effective cancer treatment within reach for Missourians across the state.”

“As the nation’s largest voluntary health organization dedicated to improving cancer care, the American Cancer Society believes all cancer patients should have access to the broad range of therapies needed to combat their disease,” said Stacy Reliford, Government Relations Director, American Cancer Society Cancer Action Network. “Oral chemotherapy is truly the wave of the future in cancer care and offers patients distinct advantages over traditional intravenous chemotherapy, including the fact that they are targeted therapies which attack only the cancer cells, leaving healthy cells alone. This lifesaving legislation will allow patients to use the most appropriate drug without being influenced by their out-of-pocket costs.”

An actuarial study commissioned by the legislature estimated that the legislation would have a negligible impact on insurance premiums.
