Congressman Smith Visits Bernie High School on Friday

Bernie, Missouri - On Friday, Congressman Jason Smith brought Congress to the classroom, speaking with students at Bernie High School. Congressman Smith took questions on a variety of topics including the presidential race, immigration, and welfare.

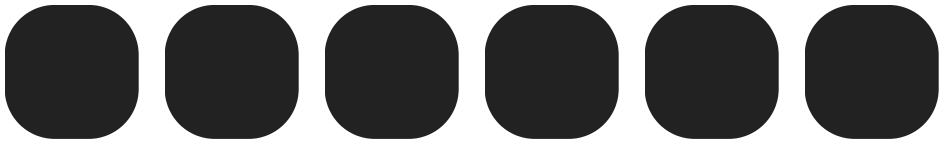

"I had a great discussion with the students at Bernie High School. They are engaged and very aware of what's going on in the world around them," said Smith. "These students represent our future, and that future looks bright in Bernie."

As one of the youngest members of the House of Representatives, Congressman Smith connects with students during frequent "Congress in the Classroom" discussions, both in person and via video chat.
