"We played intimidated and made several preventable errors at the beginning and got behind by 15 points. We finally got our head in it and fought out 10 points in the first set."

"The second set we played better, but again made some silly errors that caused us to get behind," continued Collier. "There were moments of great plays, but there were also times we were not aggressive and made inexcusable errors. We are taking the experience of playing such a great team as a learning experience and as an opportunity to get better."
