Daily Devotional - Wednesday, January 2, 2019 - Spectator or Participant?

Daily Devotional - Wednesday, January 2, 2019 - Spectator or Participant?

Romans 12:9-13

There's something in human nature that resists having to lean on others for support. In fact, since its very beginnings, our country has been known for an independent spirit and self-sufficiency. But what may be considered beneficial in a national culture is not what Christ advocates for His church. Although we are each saved individually, the Lord doesn't intend for us to live as if we're on an island—set apart to ourselves. We are called the body of Christ, and as such, our lives are meant to touch, intersect, and connect with other believers in a local church.

The various ways we support one another are summarized in today's passage, and they cover a large range of experiences, from rejoicing to suffering. No matter where we find ourselves on this spectrum, God calls us to be devoted to one another through service, prayer, and hospitality. Paul also specifies the attitudes we should have as we care for each other: sincere love, unselfishness, honor, diligence, and eagerness.

As you can see, the church is a place for participants, not spectators. Yet many Christians today think this kind of involvement in others' lives is too costly. So they come on Sunday, stand to sing, sit to listen, and walk out to get back to their own lives. The term "spectator Christian" doesn't apply only to those who deliberately avoid going to church. In fact, many churches are filled with observant attendees who sit in the pews each week but never touch a fellow believer's life. What about you? Are you a spectator seeking what you can get or a participant looking for ways to give to someone else?

Daily Devotional - Tuesday, January 1, 2019 - One Body, One Lord

TUESDAY

If you're a Christian, you know the importance of being part of a church, because that's where we grow and worship together as the body of Christ. However, it's also a place where conflicts, disagreements, and annoyances occur. Although we are saved and destined for heaven, we still live in a fallen world and struggle with our own sins and weaknesses. What's more, we come from diverse backgrounds and have different personalities and levels of spiritual maturity.

That's why it's essential that we learn to "walk in a manner worthy of the calling" of Christ (Eph. 4:1). How would a physical body function if the various parts ignored the brain's direction and did their own thing? That's what happens when a church won't listen to its head, Jesus Christ. The inevitable result is conflict as individual members push their own agendas.

The only way we can walk worthy of our calling in a local church is to have the qualities mentioned in verse 2: humility, gentleness, patience, tolerance, and love. When these Christlike attributes characterize a group of believers, being together will be like a small taste of heaven on earth. Although there may still be disagreements, the manner in which they're handled will change. Instead of angry outbursts, silent resentment, and bitterness, there will be greater concern for the other person than for oneself.

Our involvement in a local church is one of the ways God works to conform us to His Son's image. The close connections developed within the community of faith will both encourage us and sand off the rough areas in our life. In that way, we end up looking more like Christ.

Daily Devotional - Friday, December 28, 2018 - The Real Heaven

Matthew 25:14-30

FRIDAY

Trying to picture life in eternity, many people imagine lying around on clouds, strumming harps. I'm not sure how this misconception about heaven got started, but I can assure you that is unlikely. We have been gifted, equipped, and enabled to fulfill God's purpose in this life. And He will still have a purpose for us in the life to come.

In today's passage, Jesus described the kingdom of heaven in the context of a man giving his servants money to invest. The men who served their master faithfully were heartily congratulated and given greater responsibility. When we reach Christ's judgment seat, our foremost reward will be to hear Him say, "Well done, good and faithful servant!" (Matt. 25:23 NIV). I can't imagine words that could please me more than a commendation from the Savior I love above all.

We will also receive our new assignment in God's heavenly kingdom. This is the part of the reward that corresponds to the words, "You were faithful with a few things, I will put you in charge of many things" (v. 23). There will be no lazing about for us! We will have a renewed heaven and earth to live in and enjoy (2 Peter 3:13). In our perfected bodies, with hearts and souls attuned to the Lord, we will serve Him and each other.

God has a plan for every believer to pursue, and He has gifted each of His children specifically for that purpose. That plan requires our passion and motivation—on earth or in heaven. This world is our training ground for the greater life to come, so let’s prepare like good and faithful servants.

Daily Devotional - Wednesday, December 26, 2018 - No One is Righteous

DECEMBER 26TH 2018 BY DEE LOFLIN

Daily Devotional - Wednesday, December 26, 2018 - No One is Righteous

WEDNESDAY

Many people think that by trying to live a good life, they are guaranteed a ticket to heaven. They may say things like, “I’m a good person; I don’t steal, lie, cheat, or commit adultery, as other people do. I’ve never been to prison, and I always work hard and contribute to society. So why shouldn’t I deserve to go to heaven?” Notice that the focus is on “what I do.”

This is actually a false idea used by the enemy as a way to deceive people. The truth is that God does not accept anyone based upon works, and the reason is simple: Salvation doesn’t depend on anything we can achieve. Nothing you or I do can earn it. We are saved solely on the basis of what Jesus accomplished when He died in our place to set us free from the power of sin and death. That’s what salvation is about.

To truly know the heavenly Father, you need to be right with Him. Yet not a single one of us is righteous on our own. Each of us has sinned over and over, not only in words and deeds but also in the contemplations of our heart. We can’t boast of righteousness, even if we can boast of “good works.” But at the cross, Christ was dealing with our sin problem, not our works.

We came into this world as sinners, separated from the Creator by our self-centered nature. Jesus, through His grace, took the punishment we deserved when He went to the cross as our substitute. In that way, He makes it possible for everyone who trusts in Him to be made righteous. By receiving Him as the Savior, anyone can begin a new life as God’s child (John 3:16; Eph. 2:4-9).

Daily Devotional - Tuesday, December 18, 2018 - Those Who Hurt

DECEMBER 18TH 2018 BY DEE LOFLIN

Mark 10:46-52

In the midst of suffering, we may question whether God cares or even knows what we're going through. However, the problem isn't with the Lord—it's with our perception. We tend to judge God by our circumstances, but we should judge circumstances by the Lord's character and the power He demonstrated in Scripture.

The Bible teaches that our triune God is omniscient and knows all things perfectly and fully. No actions or persons are hidden from His sight, and the past, present, and future are all laid out before Him (Psalm 33:13-15; Heb. 4:13).

The Lord "searches all hearts, and understands every intent of the thoughts" (1 Chronicles 28:9). Therefore, He knows us intimately and understands what we really need. God's love and concern for us do not change, even if our pain is the result of our own sinful actions.

Jesus repeatedly demonstrated God's love and care for people. In fact, much of His ministry consisted of alleviating suffering along with teaching how to enter the kingdom of heaven.

While traveling to Jerusalem in anticipation of the cross, Jesus encountered a blind beggar who kept crying out, “Son of David, have mercy on me!” (Mark 10:48). Although the crowd told him to be quiet, Jesus stopped to restore his sight and affirm his faith.

And He will hear your cries for help as well because His love extends like a canopy over you. When your circumstances tempt you to doubt this, consider your limited perspective and trust in the character of your God. Accept Jesus’ invitation to bring your burdens to Him and find rest for your soul (Matt. 11:28-30).
